FOREWORD

This is your personal record. Keep it close with your character sheet and bring it to every session. The Player Journal is where your story takes shape on the page.

Here you will track what matters most: your goals, your growth, your treasures, and your scars. It is more than a list of numbers and gear. It is the place where your adventurer becomes real.

Over time these pages will fill with victories and failures, rumors and discoveries, allies and rivals, and the legacy you leave behind.

This book is not just paperwork. It is the living history of your character.

Good luck!

CHAPTER 1: IDENTITY

Every adventurer begins with a spark: who they are, what they want, and what they hide. This is more than a name and a face. It is the core of your story, the reason you step into danger, and the thread that ties you to the world.

Identity also includes who you stand with. A faction, guild, or adventurers' league may define your place in the world and shape your choices. These bonds can open doors or create trouble.

Begin here, and the rest will follow.

- Name: Your character's name
- Appearance: How others see you
- Goal: What drives you forward
- Secret: Something you hide
- Quirk: A habit or trait that stands out
- Faction: A group or cause you belong to

Example:

- Name: Lysa the Quick
- Appearance: Lean, restless eyes, always moving
- Goal: Find her father's lost mine
- Secret: Knows the Silver Syndicate murdered him
- Quirk: Always scouts ahead
- Faction: Apprentice of the Miners' Guild

CHAPTER 2:

MECHANICS

Your character is more than a name and a story. Game mechanics describe the numbers, powers, and abilities that shape how you act in the world. This is where rules meet roleplay.

Record your attributes, skills, combat details, and other system information here. Keep them together for easy reference during play. Whenever you gain new powers, learn spells, or improve your equipment, update this chapter. Over time it will show how your character grows in the language of the game system.

- Attributes: Core numbers of strengths and weaknesses
- Skills: Specific talents or proficiencies
- Combat: Armor, health, and attack values
- Powers: Magical or special abilities
- Notes: Rules details that do not fit elsewhere

Example:

- Attributes: Str 12, Dex 15, Con 9, Int 11, Wis 10, Cha 8
- Skills: Trap Sense, Survival +2, Climb Walls
- Combat: AC 13, HP 7, Attack +3 (dagger)
- Powers: Light, Sleep (2 slots)
- Notes: Knows Thieves' Cant

CHAPTER 3:

BACKPACK

Adventurers live and die by what they carry. Your backpack is the list of items you bring into the unknown. It shows how prepared you are for danger, how long you can last on the road, and what you trust to keep you alive.

These are the tools you rely on day to day. What goes here should be the gear that never leaves your side.

- Weapons: Arms ready for combat
- Tools: Practical gear in your pack
- Rations: Provisions for travel
- Other gear: Anything else carried
- Valuables: Coins, gems, or treasures worth carrying

Example:

- Weapons: Shortsword
- Tools: Rope, flint and steel
- Rations: 3 days rations
- Other gear: Small wooden charm
- Valuables: 12 silver coins

CHAPTER 4:

MY STASH

Not everything you own comes with you. Some items stay behind, waiting for when you return. A stash is proof that your adventurer has a life outside the expedition.

It also creates choices. What you carry may save you, what you leave may be lost or stolen.

- Location: Where the stash is kept
- Stored Gear: Items not carried
- Wealth: Coins, valuables, or goods
- Property: Land, houses, or storage places
- Notes: Special conditions or details

Example:

- Locations: In a hidden chest at the the Goat's Horn Inn
- Stored Gear: Chainmail
- Wealth: 25 gold coins
- Property: Shared room at the Goat's Horn Inn
- Notes: Owes 2 gp in rent

CHAPTER 5: BONDS

No hero stands alone. Allies and bonds are the ties that shape your story. They are the friends you trust, the mentors who guide you, and the companions who remind you why you fight. Bonds can also mean rivals or complicated relationships that push you forward.

Record these names so that your character feels rooted in the world and connected to others.

- Name: Who they are
- Role: What they do
- Bond: How you are tied to them
- Notes: Details worth remembering

Example:

- Name: Marla
- Role: Innkeeper
- Bond: Trusted confidant

CHAPTER 6:

ADVANCEMENT

LOG

Growth is the mark of every adventurer. Advancement can come from training, discovery, or victory. This chapter is where you record the steps that make your character stronger.

By tracking your advancement, you can look back and see not only what changed on your sheet but also how your story grew with each choice.

- Session: When progress was gained
- Change: What improved
- Notes: Any story reason for the growth

Example:

- Session: 7
- Change: Learned Stealth skill
- Notes: Training from a thief in camp

CHAPTER 7:

DOWNTIME

ACTIVITIES

Not every moment is spent exploring ruins or fighting monsters. In downtime you recover, prepare, and live in the world. This shapes your character just as much as battles do.

Some activities are quick and resolved in a day. Others are projects that last over time, where each entry records your progress and current status until the work is complete.

- Activity: What you did
- Outcome: The result of your effort
- Status: Ongoing progress for long-term projects
- Notes: Any lasting effects or important details

Examples of Activities

- Training with a mentor
- Crafting equipment or potions
- Studying old texts or maps
- Carousing in taverns
- Researching monsters or magic
- Building or repairing property
- Networking with factions
- Praying or making offerings
- Resting and recovering

Example

Activity: Training

Outcome: Improved swordplay

Status: 2 of 4 sessions completed

CHAPTER 8:

PERSONAL QUESTS

Every hero has goals that go beyond treasure. A personal quest is what gives your character meaning. It could be finding a lost heirloom, uncovering a secret, or protecting someone you love.

This chapter is where you record those quests, their rewards, and whether they succeed or fail. They are the heart of your personal story.

- Quest: What you seek
- Reward: What success means
- Status: Active, completed, failed
- Notes: Extra details

Example:

- Quest: Recover father's lost mine
- Reward: Wealth and closure

CHAPTER 9: LEADS

Not every path begins with a clear map. Sometimes it starts with fragments, half-heard rumors, offhand remarks, or curious details that hint at something larger.

These aren't full quests, but open doors waiting to be explored.

Write them down before they slip away. A rumor might be false, a lead might fade into nothing, or it could grow into the very heart of your character's story.

- Lead: What you've heard or discovered
- Source: Who shared it, or where it came from
- Notes: Why it matters to you

Example:

- Lead: Bandits hide near the old mine
- Source: Marla the innkeeper
- Notes: May be tied to father's death

CHAPTER 10:

MY SHITLIST

Not every wound comes from a blade. Some come from insults, betrayals, or broken trust. This chapter is your personal record of grudges. The black book with names of those who crossed you, how they did it, and whether you ever set things right.

It may be a petty note about who shorted you a drink, or a deadly oath against a rival who betrayed you in battle. Over time this becomes the list of stories that define your character's grudges and unfinished business.

- Name: Who wronged you
- Offense: What they did
- When: When or where it happened
- Response: What you did or plan to do
- Notes: Any extra details

Example:

- Name: Jerrik the Porter
- Offense: Took extra pay and left me stranded
- When: Session 8, caravan job
- Response: Still looking for him
- Notes: Will not forgive if we meet again

TRAVEL DIARY

The Travel Diary records where you went, what you discovered, and what left its mark on you.

Each entry is a reminder of the road you walked and the events that tested you. Over time it becomes the record of a life lived in motion.

- Session: Which game session
- Route: Path traveled
- Events: What happened
- Notes: Any lasting impression

Example

- Session: 12
- Route: North road to Blackmoore Keep
- Events: Found hidden entrance, nearly ambushed

CHAPTER 12: LEGACY

Every story ends, but every hero leaves something behind. A legacy is the proof that your adventurer mattered. It may live in the memories of companions, in the names of landmarks, or in the songs of taverns.

- Deeds: What you were known for
- Allies: Who remembers you fondly
- Impact: What changed because of you
- Landmarks: Places named in your honor
- Song or tale: Stories told about you
- Who mourns: The ones who grieve your loss
- Who rejoices: The ones glad to see you gone
- Other: Anything else worth recording

Example

- Deeds: Cleared Blackmoore Keep
- Allies: Stonemasons' Lodge honors her
- Impact: Map of the northern trail still used
- Landmark: Bridge called Lysa's Crossing
- Song or Tale: Ballad of the Quick Step sung in taverns
- Who Mourns: Marla wept at the Goat's Horn tavern
- Who Rejoices: The Silver Syndicate celebrated in secret
- Other: Her dagger passed down through three adventurers
